LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 12, 1920.

NUMBER 40.

MANY EX-SERVICE MENShould take Advantage Of This Offer.*Y. M. C. A. To Furnish Financial Aid.

The first meeting of the Educational Service Committee, which includes this county, was held at the Phoenix Hotel Tuesday, February 3rd, at noon. There were representatives there from about 20 counties. These counties are included in what are known as "The Student Paris and Lexington Districts of the Y. M. C. A. work." There was one representative from each county present. The whole matter of the Y. M. C. A. Fund for ex-service men was gone into, and the county representatives were given full information that they might give the best service in their county to men who wanted to take advantage of going to some school or taking correspondence courses through the fund made available by the Y. M. C. A. In each county there are three men who have in charge the interest of the ex-service men.

At different times during the next few months similar meetings to the one just held will be called, at which time, actual awards will be made. The money is available now and ex-service men should take instant advantage of it.

It should be the duty of the whole community and county to see personally ex-service men, and if they want to go to school or take correspondence courses, they should go to their County Committees and get the information. Following are the schools which have been placed upon the accredited list, and others will be added to it at once.

All Smith-Hughes High Schools
Y. M. C. A. Night School of Louisville.

Y. M. C. A. Night School of Cincinnati.

State Normal Schools,
Bowling Green Business University.

Bethel College,
Oneida Institute.

Union College,
Williamsburg College.

Lincoln Institute,
Sue Bennett Memorial School.

Pikeville Institute,
All members of the Kentucky College Association.

There is a Y. M. C. A. Correspondence School with headquarters at New York, which is designed to serve in the whole United States. It offers splendid courses in agriculture, farm mechanics and business subjects. Full information on this will be given in each county and is in the hands of the County Committee.

It is the desire of the Y. M. C. A. to make money go as far as possible, and to serve as many soldiers as it can. The amounts for each county are not so large, but by supplementing what a man has here and there and giving larger amounts to the more needy a number of men in each county can be given educational advantages. It is the duty of the public, the pastors, officers of the law and other public spirited citizens to see that in this time of reconstruction that as many as possible of its soldiers' sons take advantage of any and all such educational opportunities.

The Local Committee for this County is composed of Mack J. Morgan, Dr. Virgil Kinnaird and H. V. Bastin, who will be glad to furnish application blanks and give information.

The Y. M. C. A. Secretary for this District is Carl P. Zerfoss, who will cooperate with the County Committee and desires to help every soldier possible in the County. His address is Y. M. C. A., Lexington, Ky.

The above named local committee solicits the cooperation of every person in the county and especially that of the members of the American Legion in securing the right men for these scholarships.

The money is now ready for use. See or write to any member of the local committee for further information.

MACK J. MORGAN,
Member of Local Committee.

Buys Indiana Farm.

Mr. D. W. Faulkner has just returned from Bloomington, Indiana, where he purchased a 160 acre farm near this city. Webb showed us a picture of the farm and if its half as good as the picture looks, he has bought a bargain. He with his family leave this week very much to the regret of their friends in old Garrard.

W. F. CHAMP
Made Chairman of Road Organization.

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the meeting of those interested in carrying the bond issue, the election calling for a vote of the people on the issue, to be voted upon Tuesday, March 30th. A number of splendid talks were made, by Messrs. R. F. Hudson, R. H. Tomlinson and J. E. Robinson.

After the speeches a vote of those present was taken and it was seen that all were unanimously in favor of the bond issue.

Mr. W. F. Champ was chosen as chairman of the organization and no better selection could have been made.

ATTEMPT MADETo Burn McCreary Courthouse.

Lexington, Ky.—An attempt has been made to burn the McCreary County Court House, at Whitley City, by unknown parties.

The fire was discovered by a roomer at the Hinkle Hotel on retiring when the glare of the light reflected on the window pane. Alarm was turned in and in a short while the blaze was under control.

The fire was started near the door of the Circuit Clerk's office, where kerosene had been used. A quart can which had contained kerosene was found near the place. Only slight damage was done, and no records were destroyed.

$60,000 DamageSuit Filed.

Attorneys John Sam Owsley, of this city, and U. C. Hagby, of Danville, have filed suit for $60,000 damages against the Queen & Crescent, or Southern Railway, for the killing of George Barnett, mention of which was made at the time. It is reported that Attorney Lewis L. Walker, of Lancaster, who represents Carlton Elkin, badly injured when young Barnett was killed, will also file suit for a large amount of damages.—Interior Journal.

Reward For Bank Robbers.

The Crab Orchard Banking Co., has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the parties who robbed that institution Saturday morning last. The Lincoln County National Bank of this city, adds $50 to the amount and the Kentucky Bankers' Association $100, for each and every person convicted of the robbery, making a total of $250. It is believed that a pretty fair trace has been gotten of the yeggmen and may be the next issue of the I. J. will tell of an arrest or so. We hope so, any way.—Interior Journal.

Boy Tobacco Raiser.

Out on the Wolf Trail road lives Elmer T. Ray, the fifteen year old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Ray, that has made a record raising tobacco that sets an example that others might do well to emulate. He persuaded his father to let him have one half acre of ground for tobacco, attending the entire crop himself, losing only eight days from school and for which he received the sum of $528.00. It was sold on the Lancaster market and brought an average of 65 cents a pound. He says he will raise an acre this year.

In Great Demand.

There is a great demand for Dodge Bros. Motor cars, as the following list of names will prove.

Kinnaird Bros delivered the past month, cars to Goodloe and Walker Bros, Floyd Humphrey, Dr. Virgil G. Kinnaird, Perry Tuggle, Wesley Thompson, Jim Crisillia, Lancaster Milling Co, Silas Moss and Emmet Long.

Kinnaird Bros tell us it is harder to get the cars than it is to sell them and anyone wanting a car should place their order with them now. As to the car, ask the man who drives the Dodge.

LOST:—Monday, February 2nd,

DEATH CLOSES
Beautiful Life Of Mrs. Shackelford.

The friends and all those who personally knew Mrs. Louie Kauffman Shackelford, feel deeply their loss in her death, which occurred Tuesday morning, February 10th, 1920, at Wichita Falls, Texas, and they extend to her family their profound sympathy. Mrs. Shackelford was Miss Louise Kauffman before her marriage and the oldest daughter of Mrs. Emma Kauffman. She is survived by her husband, and two children, Clay Kauffman, 6 years old and Mary, 4 years old; her mother, Mrs. Emma Kauffman, one sister, Miss Frankie Kauffman and one brother, Mr. Clay Kauffman.

She joined the Christian church when quite young and she has been a devout member. She graduated at the Richmond University and held a position in one of the Public Schools in St. Louis, Missouri, for a number of years. Mrs. Shackelford had been married eight years and the last two years they have made their home in Wichita Falls, Texas, where the Selden and Breck Construction Company of which Mr. Shackelford is a member built them a new bungalow.

It would be impossible to overestimate the extent of the attachment felt for her throughout the whole county; and her death seemed a household affliction to all who enjoyed her friendship. Musing sorrowfully over the death, fond memory recalled the lines that have brought comfort to others when oppressed with the solemn mystery of death:

She is not dead, well we know
The form that now lies mute beneath the sod
Shall rise, when time the golden bugles blow,
And pour their music through the courts of God.

The funeral services will be held at the home on Danville avenue Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. F. M. Tindler, assisted by Rev. E. R. Hourland, officiating. Burial will follow in the family lot in the Lancaster cemetery.

SUDDEN CALLFor Mrs. Johnson Price.

Mrs. Emma Washburn Price, wife of Mr. T. Johnson Price of this city, died suddenly last Monday morning at Deland, Florida, where she and Mr. Price had gone to spend the winter, as has been their custom for the past five or more years. The news of her sudden death came as a shock to her numerous friends and relatives here and elsewhere.

The remains were brought to Lancaster last night and burial will take place in the cemetery here this afternoon at two o'clock.

About twelve years ago she was married to Mr. Price and those few short years have been both happy and congenial. She was one of the leading figures in our social and club life and a most active member of the Christian church. She was a lovely character and her friends were numbered by her acquaintances.

Beside her husband, she is survived by four sisters and one brother, to all of whom is extended sincere sympathy.

RESIDENCEAt Public Auction.

Mr. G. T. Walker tells us that he will sell at Public Auction on Saturday afternoon, February 21st, at 2 P. M. the Stone property on Maple Avenue in the city of Lancaster, for immediate possession. Read his advertisement in this issue of the Record.

SLAVIN PROPERTY
Sold Well last Saturday

Mrs. T. R. Slavin, as administratrix of T. R. Slavin, deceased, sold the splendid farm last Saturday, containing 125 acres, lying seven miles from Lancaster on the Richmond pike, to Center Brothers and G. C. Cox, for $301.00 an acre. This is one of the choicest farms in the county and lies in one of the best neighborhoods.

All the personal property, amounting to several thousand dollars, brought splendid prices. Milk cows bringing from $140 to $150 a head; shoats 18 cents a pound; horses from $100 to $160 and mules from $200 to $275 a head. Capt. Am Bourne was on the block and did his part of the work splendidly, receiving many compliments on his work after the sale.

MUCH DOING
Among Masonic Circles To-Morrow.Banquet In The Evening.

Thirteen candidates will take the Master's Degree in the Lancaster Lodge No. 104, F. and A. M. tomorrow, the work beginning promptly at 1:30 o'clock. Friday the thirteenth and with thirteen candidates, hold no hours for the participants, but possibly were it not for the delightful banquet that is to be held at the School Auditorium that evening, many might be superstitious. This part of the entertainment will be served by the "Circle Girls" of the Christian church, and their reputation along this line needs no introduction here and all predict that it will be in keeping with the rest of the program.

REV. H. S. HUDSON, Master.

The "work" will be "put on" under the direction of Grand Master Henry L. McElroy, of Lebanon, by degree teams of Lebanon, Danville and Lancaster.

Some of the "big guns" of this splendid order who will be here to attend the meeting and assist in the work are: Past Grand Master Sam K. Veach, of Carlisle; Past Grand Master, James N. Saunders, of Stanford and Past Master John Yeager of Danville.

The following candidates will take the Master's Degree: M. H. Steenberger, Chas. M. Thompson, Ben Wood, Shirley Hudson, Charlie Sanders, J. E. Seale, V. G. Kinnaird, O. R. Carpenter, H. L. Hignite, Glass Carrier, T. J. Price, Robert Kinnaird, and Joe Kavansugh.

DELIGHTFUL
BANQUETAt Kengarlan Hotel Last Friday Evening.

The Garrard Tobacco Warehouse Company, was host of one of the most delightful banquets last Friday evening, given in honor of the various tobacco buyers and employees of the company. About fifty invitations were issued, and with the exception of two or three that were detained on account of illness, all responded and were on hand promptly.

The large table in the spacious dining room of the hotel was arranged in the shape of a "U" and conveniently accommodated all present.

The handsome decorations included carnations and high red roses which were arranged artistically along the table, with place cards arranged at each guests plate.

Judge L. L. Walker, presided as Toastmaster, and did so most gracefully. Several responded to short "toasts" among them being, Mr. J. E. Robinson, Mr. W. R. McFar, Mr. J. K. Turner, Mr. John M. Farra and Mr. James Shelburn. The latter named gentleman proved an artist in his rendition of Negro dialect and furnished convulsive laughter during the few minutes of his reading.

GOOD CROWDHear Swiss Bell Ringers At School Building.

The auditorium of the Graded and High School building was practically filled last Friday evening to hear the Swiss Bell Ringers, who through the efforts of Prof. P. H. Hopkins, were brought to Lancaster under the auspices of the Athletic and Library department of the school. Everyone present were delighted with the entertainment and are grateful to Mr. Hopkins for securing these high class artists.

The part that the school received from the door receipts amounted to about $55.00.

TROOPS
FIRE ON MOB
Killing Five and Wounding Seventeen.SEEK WILLIAM LOCKETT WHO IS CONVICTED OF THE MURDER OF GENEVA HARDMAN.*Lexington Under Marshal Law.

A toll of five dead and seventeen injured resulted from the clash between a large mob and the state militia, who were sent to Lexington to guard William Lockett, self-confessed murderer of Geneva Hardman, a ten year old girl in Jessamine county. As the mob rushed the main entrance to the court house, the jury was returning a verdict of first degree murder, sentencing Lockett to die in the electric chair March 11th.

A crowd estimated at more than four thousand persons, stood outside the court house during the trial and when the result was made known, there were wild mutterings. On the steps of the court house was a machine gun, which had been sent from Camp Zachary Taylor, manned by four soldiers.

As the crowd surged forward Adjutant General Dewese appeared and ordered the crowd to fall back. His command was ignored and the crowd pushed forward crying "Lynch him." While the authorities were holding off the mob, the negro was being heavily guarded in the temporary cell on the second floor of the court house.

The mob being temporarily repulsed, began raiding pawn shops and hardware stores seeking fire arms and ammunition, determining at all hazards to secure Lockett. On the heels of these reports came an appeal to the federal authorities for troops from Governor Morrow. Arrangements were immediately made for two battalions of 160 men each fully equipped to proceed by special train. These federal troops were commanded by General F. C. Marshall.

Lockett was brought to Lexington early Monday morning from Frankfort. The streets were crowded with onlookers and hundreds of farmers from adjoining counties had gathered to witness the trial. Long before the hour for trial the court house was filled and no one was admitted until searched for weapons.

The cry of "Let's get him" from a brawny farmer in the crowd which was unable to get in the court house started the unsuccessful lynching party. Several times the cry was heard among the members of the mob and with it the crowd started forward.

Soldiers and police quickly stepped into closer formation and trained their guns on the mob. A final warning shouted by Gen. DeWeese was unheeded by the mob and he fired his revolver into the air.

This was the signal for general firing. The soldiers and police laid a hot barrage into the mob and when the mob retreated it was found that 19 had fallen, four of whom were dead, and a fifth dying later from the effect of his wounds.

It was believed that blank cartridges also were used, for, with the rapid firing of machine guns and the hail of bullets from the police and soldiers with rifles it seems only plausible that many more would have been killed or wounded.

Lockett's Terrible Crime.

Little Geneva Hardman, 10-year-old daughter of Mrs. Emma Hardman, a widow, South Elkhorn section, Fayette County, was trailing along the road to school last Wednesday morning, when the negro, Will Lockett, met her in the road, dragged her to a corn field, almost in sound of her mother's home, and there murdered her by crushing her skull with a rock, after her struggles had prevented his attempt to assault her.

A neighbor, driving along the road, found her empty school satchel and hood lying at the roadside. Thinking the child might have dropped them, he carried them to the schoolhouse. The teacher sent several children to the Hardman home to make inquiries. Then the search began and tracks of a man and a child leading into the corn field were followed.

Body Found Among Shocks.
Among fodder shocks they found the girl's body, the head crushed. The news spread and soon a posse of citizens, Deputy Sheriffs and police, with Captain Mulliken and bloodhounds, were scouring the country for the murderer. Suspicion was directed at Lockett, a former EFFICIENCY LECTURE AND MOVING PICTURESBringing Out The Latest Ideas In Retail Merchandising to be Shown Here Free Of Cost.

Arrangements have been completed by the Central Record to bring to this city, on Thursday, Feb. 19th, at 7:30 o'clock, in the Court House, the noted lecture and motion pictures, entitled, "The Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them." The lecture and pictures will bring to the merchant, clerk, and professional man, one of the most fascinating stores on retail merchandising and store efficiency ever presented. Mr. W. H. Farley will be the lecturer, and, by moving pictures and stereoscopic views, will show and explain some of the latest and best methods on storekeeping—arrangement of goods, window display, how to write newspaper ads and how to get best results therefrom—and many other interesting things relating to retail business.

The feature of the evening will be a three-reel Essanay film showing "The Troubles of a Merchant"—the mistakes that usually occur in the average store, the indifference among clerks on account of lack of proper supervision, bad system, poorly arranged stock—which resulted in losses and leaks in the business, and finally caused the merchant to become disheartened and about to give up the struggle. The merchant's career changed, however, after he adopted a system that gave him a proper check on his goods and money, rearranged his store and goods so that they attracted customers, and taught his clerks how to become more efficient through being courteous and attentive to the trade. The lecture and pictures bring out many other ideas of interest to the merchant, and are instructive as well as entertaining.

These pictures have been shown before some of the largest state and national conventions, under the auspices of Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Merchants' Associations, and other business organizations, and have received the highest commendation and endorsement.

The lecture and pictures have been secured through the courtesy of The National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio. There will be no charge for admission, and every merchant and clerk in the city will, no doubt, take advantage of the opportunity offered and attend.

HERE'S A RECORDThat Takes The Rag Off The Bush.

Mr. Webb Kelley of this county, and universally known by his famous "Kelley Tobacco Seed" has made a record this year with five acres of tobacco, that competitors may take a shot at for several years to come.

From five acres of measured ground, Mr. Kelley sold $5,678.17 worth of tobacco over the breaks of the Garrard Tobacco Warehouse at an average close to the dollar mark. But this is not all, for from this same piece of ground and same tobacco he gathered his celebrated seed, amounting to 4,000 ounces, which he has sold and delivered and for which he received $8,000, making a total of $13,678.17 from five acres of land.

27 Citizens of Corbin
Indicted In Race Riot

Corbin, Ky.—Twenty-seven persons, many prominent citizens, have been indicted as members of the mob which ran all negroes from the city October 30, following a race riot after holdup of a white man at a carnival.

None of the 300 negroes driven from Corbin have returned, although some are property owners.

Only one negro, an aged servant of a prominent family, remains.

soldier, who worked on a farm in the neighborhood, and who had been seen walking down the road by another negro, who a few moments later also had passed the little girl walking to school.

Lockett was taken to Edenville prison where he will be electrocuted on March 11th. Lexington is still under marshal law.

FARM STOCK

BASIS FOR PORK PRODUCTION

One Source of Failure Is That Many Follow It as Speculation Rather Than Business.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Recent heavy slumps in the hog market, as well as the high prices of corn, have caused hog raisers in various parts of the country to reduce the number of sows in their herds, according to reports received. Hog raising on the farm should be made a stable, regular business, department specialists believe. The man beginning to raise hogs should resolve to follow it year in and year out, regardless of the price he may obtain for his hogs or the cost of the feed which he converts into pork. Like every other farming activity, pork production has its ups and downs, but, according to long-time averages, the farmer who sticks realizes a fair and dependable profit, the specialists declare.

One source of failure is that too many follow it as a speculation rather than as a business. They plunge on hogs just as they would gamble on grain futures or on the stock market. Operations of this character are never beneficial for any business. Because of the recent decline in the hog market it does not necessarily follow that the selling price of the pigs that will be raised from the sows bred this fall will not be satisfactory. The pigs of this fall will not be ready for a season and untold changes may come about.

Every farmer who is conservative, careful, and painstaking in his hog-raising operations is able after a few years of experimentation to determine approximately the maximum and minimum number of sows that he can maintain on his farm at the greatest net profit. When he has accurately ascertained this number he should breed that many sows every year, other conditions being equal. In adhering to this plan the farmer is, in no sense, a speculator, but is in reality a business man practicing common-sense business management. Hog raising throughout the localities where pork is made as a regular and dependable cash crop has proved one of the most reliable farm activities in which the farmer engages, and despite market fluctuations and the spasmodic irregularities in prices the prospects are that pork production will be as profitable in the future as it has been in the past.

PREVENT CROWDING OF PIGS

Properly Constructed Feed Trough Assures Each Individual Porker of His Share.

Young pigs should be given their feed in such a manner that each individual pig gets its share. The simplest way to accomplish this is to allow the pigs to eat from a properly constructed feed trough, one that will keep the pigs out of the feed and will lessen the possibilities of crowding.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Every colt raised will be one more work animal to help till farms.

Better a nose ring for the young bull than an accident after it is too late.

Pasture is by no means a luxury for live stock. It is now recognized as a necessity.

Silage is a good feed for most all classes of stock, but is more popular as a feed for cattle and sheep.

No other farm animals put on flesh as economically as pigs with a given amount of feed. Every farmer should have a few pigs.

Teach the calf to eat grain early. Calves are imitators. If an older calf, knowing how to eat grain, is in the pen with the smaller ones these will soon learn to eat grain.

Of the three kinds of insurance, marine is probably the oldest. The object of this insurance contract is to insure against loss of property in the course of navigation. A Lucky Throw.

I found one night just in time to see a nice getting out of my window. I took up an ink bottle, the only thing I had, and threw it at the thief. It was a lucky throw, for although it did not hit him, it struck the window and shattered him directly with red ink, which identified him later. Chicago Tribune

Are You A Target For Influenza.

It Hits Listless, Run-down People First—Their Blood Is Thin Germs Everywhere In Epidemic.

Be Prepared—Strengthen and Build Up Your Blood With Pepto-Mangan.

If it is true that you are not feeling your best—if you have that "always tired" feeling and no interest or enthusiasm—then you should be careful of influenza.

It is thin-blooded, anemic people that disease strikes first. The fact that you have had a very few serious illnesses has nothing to do with it. Everyone gets run-down occasionally, and when they do, the blood is in no condition to fight off disease germs, because it has not enough red corpuscles. It is the red corpuscles of the blood that fight disease and save you from sickness.

You simply can't afford to take chances when influenza is striking down thousands everywhere. Fortify your blood—build it up with the pleasant tonic, Pepto-Mangan.

And should you be just recovering from influenza, you need Pepto-Mangan because your blood has exhausted its strength. Pepto-Mangan will help build you up.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. Comes in either liquid or tablet form. No difference in medicinal properties.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's". Ask for it by the name and be sure the full name is on the package. (Advertisement.)

They left Tuesday to make their home at Logan West Va., where Jim Harve has a splendid position as traveling salesman for the Storrs, Schaffer Co., of Cincinnati. The community wish for them a long, happy and prosperous life.

OLD HICKORY

Honest Wagon Service

Farmers everywhere have realized the wisdom and economy of using standardize wagons.

Lighter running, relief to teams, greater service, low repair costs—these are some of the advantages emphasized. A continually increasing demand for the auto-track is the result.

And the wise farmer who appreciates these advantages will find satisfactory service in an OLD HICKORY.

Dependable construction justifies unlimited faith in OLD HICKORYS—and for general utility you can count on them under any condition.

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

There's a World of Solid Comfort In the Rich, Red Tin

YES, sir, we mean that same warm red and gold tin that smiles a welcoming "Howdy" to you in every tobacco store. Know what those colors mean?

The red is for the friendly warmth, the mellow cheeriness, that Velvet puts into your old pipe. And the gold is where the Kentucky sunshine, that ripens good old Velvet, has just sort of soaked through.

Remember what Velvet Joe said about it?

"You've met canned meat and canned music. Ever see any tinned sunshine? Well, look into any Velvet tin."

And think this over:

We don't have to hide Velvet's taste or smell with a lot of this, that and the other thing. Because Velvet has naturally what pipe smokers want—real simon-pure tobacco taste and fragrance. It's just good, honest Kentucky leaf, made still more friendly and mellow by two years' ageing in wooden hogsheads. Just good tobacco. That's all. But it's mighty near enough for the man who wants a pipeful of tobacco and not a box of bon bons.

The picture of a pipe on the tin needn't keep you from rolling a jim-dandy cigarette with Velvet.

How's the Velvet holding out in your old red tin?

"GLADDIE"

By JEANIE L. DARLING.

(Copyright 1920 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Hilliest people have not yet forgotten the eccentricities of Peter Tramp. When he built his house, the best situated in the village, it had two fronts. One, with a big piazza, faced the street; here Katie, his wife, sat and sewed or visited. The other faced the meadows behind the hill town; here, silent and moody, Peter used to sit and gaze at the faraway blue outlines of beautiful eastern mountains.

They were not as friendly as his fond and wife should be—Peter and Katie weren't. There were no children to bind their hearts together; then, too, Katie loved her neighbors and Peter did not. He would not even go to the little meeting house on Sabbath days, and Katie's heart was bitter about this. The minister once expostulated, but Peter led him through his house and onto the back, or rather the front porch.

"That there's my church, and good enough for me," he answered, pointing toward the mountains, which lay serene, majestic, understanding, in the purple-red colors of sunset, and no more would he say.

Two days after Emma Shumaker died, Katie went into Peter's garden and found Emma's four-year-old daughter there playing "mudpies" with Peter. They seemed the best of chums.

At sight of Katie Peter drew the bare footed, roguish-eyed child down beside him. His great, gaunt body trembled with tenderness.

"I shall keep her, he said definitely. Katie looked at Gladdie's irresponsible face and shuddered.

"The idea!" she objected. "You're crazy, Peter. Her aunt Ella'll have to take her. It's mighty risky taking other folks' young uns to bring up. Besides, I don't have no time to look after a child, anyway. And what would the neighbors think?"

Peter's eyes blazed.

"Hilliest ain't my judge," he answered shortly.

Peter's wife smiled sardoniously. "Well, along 's she don't bother me, she can stay," and she went back into the house.

Peter and Gladdie sat on, hand in hand, on the steps.

"Daddy," she said joyously, and stroked his face. He gathered her in to his arms and she cuddled up against his breast and slept. The sun went down and the mountains took on vague, haunting outlines in the darkening distance; peace lay over the valley world, and Peter's eyes hungrily took in the sight until his soul was satisfied, and he, too, slept, his head against the porch railing. They were still there when Katie, returning from an evening call, came out and found them.

"So this is the way you're goin' to take care of her, is it, Peter?" she dared. "She's probably got her death of cold." Oh, yes, Katie knew how her words were hurting the man she had married. "She'll go to her Aunt Ella's tomorrow, just as sure as the sun comes up."

She took the sleeping child and bundled her into the house. Peter followed, crestfallen, conscience-struck. Not for worlds would he have harmed the child he was learning to love passionately. In time he got back some of his dignity.

"You let me have her," he commanded firmly. "I want to look after her myself, and I'm goin' to keep her, too," he added not so firmly.

"Till mornin'," Katie agreed, grimly, and went out to sit alone on her porch. Gladdie was wide awake now and her happy laughter came out to Katie. Somehow it drove the anger out of her heart and filled it with a strange desolate feeling.

"What's that, Daddy?" Gladdie was asking. Gladdie's upbringing had been woefully deficient in some lines. "A nightgown? Is it Gladdie's, daddy?"

"It's Gladdie's tonight," she heard Peter say, gently. "We'll get Gladdie one of her own tomorrow."

"Who has it when Gladdie ain't here," the child persisted.

"Katie," gruffly.

"Who's Katie, Daddy?"

"She's—she's," Katie knew her husband was groping for words, "she's your new mamma."

Katie rose angrily. To put such notions into the child's head!

"Peter," she called, "you harness Ned and take that young un to her aunt Ella's right off. She ain't goin' to stay here another minute. If you hear me, Peter?"

Peter came out to the porch. "I ain't goin' to take her back, Katie," he breathed heavily.

"I wants to kiss mamma good-night, too," a plaintive voice said and a little white figure, holding up a huge nightgown, stumbled between them, fumbled for Katie's skirt, and little arms reached up for her embrace.

Katie sank back into a chair, her legs shaking from the effects of her anger, I suppose. The little white figure climbed at once into her lap, and loving, warm, sweet, baby lips pressed ardently against her throat and mouth. Gladdie's upbringing had not been neglected in some respects! With those magic kisses Katie's heart suddenly became a thing all tender.

Above the white figure, husband and wife looked into each other's eyes.

"Let's bring her up together, Peter," Katie faltered.

"I—we need you, Katie, both of us," he agreed.

Notice To RETAILERS

A private exhibition of the moving picture, entitled "The Troubles of a Merchant and How to Stop Them," will be shown to business people in the

at 7:30 o'clock

Mr. W. H. Farley, a noted lecturer on modern business methods, representing The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, will explain the pictures, which will deal with the following subjects:

1. Retail Failures and Their Causes.
2. Store Organization.
3. Newspaper Advertising.
4. Window Displays.
5. Clerks' Efficiency.
6. Selling Methods.
7. Credit Business.
8. System in Retail Stores.

Much enthusiasm has been created in other cities where the lecture has been delivered, and it is expected that a capacity audience will greet Mr. Farley and his pictures.

All merchants and salespeople in the city are invited. The admission will be free.

The Vapor Treatment FOR Influenza, Croup and Pneumonia

Mothers who know the anguish of waiting helplessly through age-long hours for the physician who may not arrive in time will hardly fail to keep on hand a bottle of this effective croup remedy. Vapomenthia is a certain preventive and specific for colds, croup, influenza, grippe, pneumonia and other respiratory ailments.

BRAME'S VAPOMENTHIA SALVE

WILL NOT STAIN THE CLOTHES

It is applied externally to the chest, throat and nostrils and is quickly absorbed through the pores of the skin. Its healing vapors rise and are inhaled directly to the infected membranes. A double-action remedy, it is doubly certain to produce satisfactory results. It has this characteristic that distinguishes it from other salves, it will not stain the clothes. Buy a bottle of Vapomenthia TODAY. It is an invaluable protection for an insignificant price.

Clyde Dudderar of Stanford, Robert Hall, of Berea, Ernest Phillips of Richmond and Ralph Perkins of Danville and Cecil Mahan of Winchester. It proved quite an enjoyable affair.

Mrs. E. H. Bourland was the honor guest at several enjoyable affairs in the past few days. General regret is felt that Rev. and Mrs. Bourland have gone elsewhere to make their home, and the best wishes of everyone will follow them to Lancaster. Last Thursday afternoon she was the honoree at a lovely informal gathering at the home of Mrs. B. E. Norfleet. About thirty guests were present, who enjoyed the hours of social converse, and the delightful salad and coffee course, with mints. Mrs. Norfleet was assisted in serving by Mrs. Sallie Morgan, Mrs. Woodbridge, Misses Elizabeth Pickett and Alma Morgan. On Friday Mrs. Charles Hardin invited about thirty neighbors and close friends to gather at her home on Beaumont avenue for a little informal farewell party to Mrs. Bourland. The hours were pleasantly spent in conversation, and the afternoon closed with a delicious lunch. Saturday afternoon the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Christian church entertained for Mrs. Bourland at the home of Mrs. Leon Morgan. As a goodbye token of esteem the young church workers presented her with a gold ornament, much to her surprise and delight. Tea and sandwiches were served.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Where She Caught It.

Little Mildred had often been told that she had hair and eyes just like her mother's. One day she was playing on the street when a lady spoke to her and remarked pleasantly: "What pretty red hair you have." "Yes," glibly answered Mildred, "I caught it from mother."

FARM ANIMALS

ATTENTION TO SICK ANIMALS

Inability of Laymen to Recognize Allments Often Results in Loss of Valuable Stock

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture
The tendency of laymen to engage in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of live stock is in a great many instances resulting in losses of animals through inability to properly recognize ailments in time to apply needed treatment, or through applying remedies not indicated in the specific cases. This is particularly dangerous in the handling of infectious and contagious diseases where not only the original herd is at stake but where, through the spread of infection, other animals may become exposed and infected.

In the work of controlling hog cholera, for instance, perhaps the greatest hindrance has been the tendency of farmers to attempt the diagnosis and treatment of their own herds, or else to call in an untrained layman, who frequently does not recognize the disease or advises the wrong procedure in the handling of the outbreak. According to experts it is not always an easy matter to recognize hog cholera, as symptoms are sometimes obscure. Other ailments of swine, such as pneumonia, worms and tuberculosis, at certain stages of development, somewhat resemble hog cholera. Accordingly, training and experience are required to distinguish between these and hog cholera.

The practicing veterinarian should acquire all possible knowledge pertaining to control and suppression of hog cholera. Of late many complications associated with the disease have arisen among those who claim to understand the various ailments of swine, and even within the veterinary profession hasty judgment has in some cases led to losses which could have been avoided through a careful consideration of facts, proper diagnosis and treatment. This should emphasize the necessity for the study of cases, including the history, environments and circumstances involved in an outbreak, before attempting to decide on the cause of trouble. Then comes the physical examination of the animals. Look for abnormal action, breathing, salt, appetite, digestion and other functions. Next, take the animal's temperature with a good, reliable thermometer. Even then positive diagnosis is not always possible until a post-mortem examination has been made, which means an examination of the various organs and parts of the body after death.

It is evident that all swine-producing localities should have someone available whose services, based on training and experience, are reliable in detecting and prescribing for diseases of live stock. And farmers should realize generally that they can not afford to jeopardize their herds by attempting to administer treatment which requires a certain amount of technical application. It is better to call a qualified veterinarian than to run the risk of losing valuable animals, to say nothing of the possibility of causing a widespread epidemic outbreak of a destructive animal disease.

EXPERIMENT IN HOG FEEDING

Tests at Ohio Station Show That Animals Fed on Corn Alone Make Costly Gains.

Tests in swine feeding at the Ohio experiment station show that pigs when fed on corn alone make costly and slow gains as compared with the more up-to-date methods of using supplemental feeds, such as tankage or skim milk, with corn.

SIMPSON.

On Tuesday of last week a pall of sadness came over this community when it became known that the Great Reaper had called one of our boys who was just as we might say, on the threshold of manhood. On Monday evening at the Berea Hospital, James H. Simpson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Simpson, passed from this life into the Great Beyond. The cause of his death was pneumonia, following an attack of measles.

His parents because of the condition of the telephone lines did not receive word of his serious condition until Monday and had only been with their loved one about an hour before the end came. James would have been sixteen years old on August 26th and had just entered school at Berea.

He leaves one sister and brother, father, mother and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. Burial took place at Gunn's Chapel Churchyard on Wednesday, after impressive services by Rev. N. G. Young. The pall bearers were selected from among his friends and class mates here, they being Messrs. McKinley Isbell, Tom Morford, Tom Price, Howard Land, Thompson Sanders and Harry Ray.

The bereaved ones have the deepest sympathy of the writer and the whole community in their sad hours. We would say to them—Remember that our Heavenly Father doeth all things well."

A SAFE TEST

For those who are in need of a remedy for kidney troubles and backache, it is a good plan to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by Lancaster people. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. H. F. Walter, Hill Terrace, Lancaster, says: "I never fail to praise Doan's Kidney Pills, for they are the most worthy remedy and have done me much good on many occasions. For several years I have suffered from a lame and painful back. My kidneys have also been irregular in action. Doan's Kidney Pills have always removed every symptom of kidney trouble at these times."

DOAN'S ALWAYS RELIABLE
Over eight years later Mrs. Walter said: "I have the greatest confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills. I was free from kidney trouble for a long time, but recently had a slight attack. I again used Doan's Kidney Pills and they quickly relieved me."

This Year Sees the Making Of Your Next President!

A newspaper man whose reputation is world wide said a few weeks ago, in an article in a largely-circulated weekly, that on the quality of our next President rested the future of the United States; that the next four years would be the most critical that this country had ever seen.

This statement seems, in the main, correct. There is no doubt in most minds but that we are at present living in an artificial era; all sense of proportion as to wages and values is lost, the only reality seems to be the eternal facing of high costs.

Labor is asking, and conditions demand it, higher wages; but it is also asking shorter hours, which will necessarily lower production.

Capital is, in most instances, granting labor's demands, adding the extra cost of production thus incurred to their selling price, and thus passing the burden on to the great middle class.

These are the people who are most affected by the high cost of living, and, unfortunately, they number by far the greater part of our population. There is the urgent need.

Then there is the legislation in this country, culminating in the prohibition amendment, which has caused such unrest among a large number of our people who object to this supervision by the government of their habits.

Bolshevism and the I. W. W. movement has made sporadic efforts in various parts of the country to overthrow the government and though so far it has been defeated, it will still bear watching.

Profiteering is rampant, and so far all government regulations seem to have been ineffective, and above all other perils, a riot of extravagance seems to possess all the people, or at least the greater part of them.

These are a few of the evils that will confront our next President and his Congress, and it behooves every citizen of this United States to help, with every fibre of his being, in a proper selection.

You can not help unless you are informed as to what is going on in this country of ours. You can not know what is going on, unless you are a daily reader of a metropolitan newspaper.

The Louisville Herald is a newspaper of the highest type; a newspaper that offers you all of the news of your city, state, country, and the world, gathered by the best news agencies of the world, prepared with greatest care by its own editorial staff, and delivered to you for less than two cents a day.

It isn't a question of being able to afford a daily paper; you can not in these times afford to be without one. No person who does not keep informed these days can perform intelligently his duty at the polls. And the times demand that we all do that.

Pork in Olden Times.

Pork was the chief meat consumed in all countries in Europe down to the middle ages. Immense drives of pigs were kept by Charlemagne in his forest in the ninth century. MISS PLINY

By JACK LAWTON.

Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union

Miss Pliny plumed an imaginary loose hair that the smooth coil at the back of her head as she regarded a small, blue-eyed girl, seated before a typewriter near by. The figure of the small blue-eyed girl drooped despondently, and her face was wistfully appealing.

"Miss Pliny," the girl asked, as though aware of the sympathy in the rare bent upon her, "what ever have you done with all your evenings, alone in this big city? I was thinking about it last night as I sat in my room. You told me once that you had never had an admirer or lover to take you about. Neither have I, nor am I likely to have, for it was the same back home where I knew everybody. I seem to have missed some way the secret of attraction. It may be, that realizing the lack of men's interest in myself, I grow bored and tiresome in their company. I don't know the reason, but conditions are not likely to improve in a city where I am a stranger, while the girls have too many good times of their own to bother about lonely me. Miss Pliny, dear, how do you spend your time and keep from utter dullness?"

The older woman smiled. "I used to ask myself just that question," she replied, "until I learned how to find, and give, happiness. My dear Violet," Miss Pliny leaned forward her shrewd eyes sparkling, "I've had many love affairs, though never a lover. Highly diverting affairs they were too."

"You're sure," Violet began, "that you loved without having your love returned and were happy?"

"Exactly," nodded Miss Pliny. Violet closed her typewriter. "I can't see," she said laughingly, "how that could brighten a lonely evening."

The older woman studied the girl with a certain inscrutable expression, which her associates in the office recognized as preceding some clever business venture. Miss Pliny had long been a valued, though silent member of the firm.

"Good night!" nodded Jim Bradley toward her desk as he took his departure. "Good night!" called Billy Blair, the office favorite. Miss Pliny responded absently. She was thinking of little Violet, and wondering impatiently why those same good-looking, honest young fellows could pass her shy, pretty assistant each day, without a gleam of interest in their faces? Miss Pliny knew the firm employees; they were good boys, and straight on the road to success. It was as Violet said. The other merry girls of the office openly refused to recognize her existence.

The girl slipped into her chair next morning with her usual low-voiced greeting, and it was not until near closing time that Miss Pliny became aware of a certain subdued excitement in her manner. Violet's blue eyes glinted, her pale cheeks were flushed with color.

"Miss Pliny," she said at last breathlessly, "the most wonderful thing has happened. I don't know how to explain it, and I do not know, exactly, what to do. Please, advise me. On my desk, when I came back from lunch, was a florist's box filled with glorious red roses. Red roses, Miss Pliny, with an audacious card reading, 'Red roses, for love.' Nothing more, Miss Pliny. No clue at all as to the sender. The message had apparently been written by the florist, for when I called up to learn the name of the donor, the clerk informed me that the person distinctly wished to remain unknown. I have not told men here, Miss Pliny, save those in the office, and you know, how likely they would be, to send me flowers."

"Just wait and keep quiet," advised Miss Pliny safely; "truth will come out."

After the fourth box of fragrant roses had been received, Jim Bradley approached Miss Pliny's desk.

"So the quiet one has a sentimental admirer," he said laughingly.

"Violet is lovely enough to have a dozen of admirers," Miss Pliny brusquely retorted.

And Jim Bradley, pausing, regarded with a new light in his eyes the bowed head of the little stenographer, Billy Blair, passing later, motioned toward the crimson bloom.

"Tribute of devotion?" he asked Miss Pliny, "or are we turning into a conservatory?"

Miss Pliny smiled. "Devotion would naturally be Violet's tribute," she said.

Billy Blair gazed into the happily transformed face of the stenographer, as though he were, for the first time, seeing her.

Miss Pliny, seated before her desk several weeks later, looked up to see Violet standing shivering before her. "I have something to tell you," Violet said, "I am going to be married, and to Billy Blair. Miss Pliny, Jim Bradley actually asked me, too. It is all so remarkable, each of those foolish boys insisted upon believing that the other sent me flowers! So, of course, my red roses could have come from neither, I hope." Violet's radiant eyes clouded, "that whoever it was, will not be unhappy."

"Who it was won't be," Miss Pliny briskly responded. "Whoever it was is happy, indeed. She's been having another of her love affairs."

With our Acetylene and Oxygen Welding Machine we can weld most any broken part of an automobile, gas engine or farming machinery. At any time you need help on your Auto, Gas Engine or any other kind of machinery, call us and we will be glad to come to your rescue either day or night. No jobs too large or too small.

We also carry a large stock of auto parts for Fords and other makes of cars. We handle the New Crown Gasoline which gives more mileage than any other gasoline on the market.

We also furnish Free Air and are equipped to Wash and Polish Autos.

Garage Open Day and Night. Satisfaction guaranteed.
